MONDAY SEMINAR
WERNER SIEMENS IMAGING CENTER
October 2016 – March 2017

Werner Siemens
Imaging Center

INVITATION

Preclinical molecular imaging is more and more in the focus of biomedical sciences and attracts notice by pharmaceutical companies. Modern imaging technologies such as PET, MRI, SPECT, CT and optical imaging hold a great potential to expand our current knowledge in many life science areas. Especially the prospect to obtain more detailed information in the fields of oncology, neurology and immunology (e.g., detection of diseases and signal pathways) in combination with the research for new and more specific targets and biomarkers significantly pushes the field of preclinical molecular imaging and translational research.

In order to give a broader audience the possibility to learn more about the potential and the recent progress in the field of preclinical molecular and translational imaging, we cordially invite students, researchers and friends to our seminar.

We also would like to invite you to our “group progress reports”, which will be held by researchers of our lab, providing an overview of their work.

We would be very pleased to welcome you in our seminar.

Bernd Pichler, PhD
